

As a family, the Spencers recorded their first album in 1972 with twenty nine projects to follow. JB and Barbara, their daughter Geniece and their two sons Wade and Kevin, traveled together and spread the Gospel in song for more than three decades. When Barbara was five years old, she started singing in church, and she learned to play the guitar when she was eleven. When she met JB, he had just bought a new Gibson guitar and was learning to play it. He was also interested in singing, and Barbara sang her way into his heart. She later taught JB how to sing harmony, and they began singing together in their home church shortly after they were married.

The three children learned to play and sing at a very early age. Wade plays the mandolin, lead guitar and rhythm guitar. Geniece plays piano and rhythm guitar, and Kevin plays the bass and rhythm guitar. God definitely called this family into the singing ministry and has opened doors for them all across America and in several foreign countries. In 1982 Geniece wrote the classic hit song, In My Robe of White, and it was on the Top 20 charts by the Spencers and Gold City Quartet at the same time, with Gold City taking it to the number one spot. This song has been recorded hundreds of times by various artists.

God has blessed each member of The Spencers to write many songs and they have recorded many of their own compositions. A few of their other popular songs are Coming Soon, Let's Meet by the River, It'll Be Worth it After All and Hem of His Garment, etc. For a complete listing of their recordings, click here to view their discography. In 1987, Geniece left the road to raise her family and for several years it was a real struggle for her as her heart was still with Gospel music. Then in 1991, she and her husband Ernie, and their three children Holli, Heather and Jared formed their own family ministry. The Ingolds are a very talented and musical family and have recorded three albums which include many of Geniece's compositions. To learn more about The Ingolds click here to view their website.

In 1992 Kevin formed his own ministry and record company, Some Dawning Music. Kevin has had three number one songs, I Heard About A Stone, Twelve Gates, and The Blood Is Still There. Some of his other popular songs are If The Rapture Was Yesterday, Come Away, If The Altar Could Talk, and God Bless America Again. He has recorded 20 albums. Each year Kevin Spencer hosts a Winter Fest in the Renaissance Theater in Mansfield, Ohio. Kevin is a real blessing to many people singing 260 dates a year.
